DISCUSSION AND REPORT FROM THE PERFORMANCE IMPROVEMENT COMMITTEE

Dr. Sullivan stated that there were two presentations for the January Performance Improvement meeting and gave a brief overview of each presentation as follows:

Jessica Hawkins, Director of Prevention Services, ODMHSAS, presented "Naloxone" as follows:

In response to Oklahoma's growing drug abuse epidemic, the Prescription Drug Planning Workgroup, commissioned by the Oklahoma Prevention Leadership Collaborative (OPLC), presented a state plan for reducing prescription drug abuse. To address Oklahoma's problem with prescription drugs, the plan outlines commitments to action for the state and the community. The commitments to action focus on the areas of community/public education, provider/prescriber education, disposal/storage for the public, disposal/storage for providers, tracking and monitoring, regulatory/enforcement, and treatment/interventions. The action items under treatment/interventions include interventions to prevent overdose. In 2013, legislation passed to allow first responders and family members to obtain and administer naloxone, a drug used to counteract the effects of opioid overdose. Overdose prevention programs involving the use of naloxone have shown success in reducing opioid-related overdose deaths.

The Oklahoma Overdose Prevention Committee was formed. The committee brought together multiple agencies including the Oklahoma Department of Mental Health and Substance Abuse Services (ODMHSAS), the Oklahoma State Department of Health (OSDH), Emergency Medical Services Authority (EMSA), and the Oklahoma Department of Public Safety to develop an Oklahoma plan for naloxone use and plan a demonstration project for first responder naloxone use. Tulsa County was chosen to be the pilot site as it ranked 18th highest in the United States among reporting counties for opioid overdose deaths in 2010. In 2011, Tulsa County accounted for 21% of Oklahoma's unintentional opioid-involved overdose deaths. Agreements were secured between the ODMHSAS and law enforcement agencies serving the County of Tulsa. A total of 19 agencies and over 700 enforcement personnel have received training on the use and administration of naloxone and medication rescue kits were disseminated to participating first responder agencies by the ODMHSAS. From May to December 2014, partner law enforcement agencies have reported 12 lives saved using naloxone.

Oklahoma's TakeAsPrescribed.org website houses naloxone information and training materials for the general public and those professionals participating in the first responder demonstration project. The Oklahoma Overdose Prevention Committee and the ODMHSAS are currently working to: Expand the first responder project to additional law enforcement agencies in high need communities; partner with the OSDH Emergency Medical Services (EMS) Division to increase naloxone access to partnering EMS agencies; and promote naloxone availability at retail pharmacy locations.

The second presentation was on the eMagazine, presented by Warren Whisler and Monica Cain, IS Applications Specialists, ODMHSAS.

Mr. Whisler stated that the eMagazine creates a visible artifact. It serves as a vessel to plant the seed of unity in a decentralized workforce.

We use our website as a business tool. It is one that communicates and enables business functions but it was not designed to help our culture bond. That is where the eMagazine helps unify culture across the Department's facilities.

Articles present readers/employees an opportunity for engagement beyond regular duties. It also promotes organizational learning by facilitating the sharing of knowledge.

Strong identifiable culture increases employee commitment, overall satisfaction, and brand image.

The ODMHSAS eMagazine can be viewed via access control and is available to all employees.

The eMagazine is released using a flip book publisher that takes PDF files of the design layouts and combines them into a professional mobile-ready digital publication that can be easily navigated and has the look of an actual magazine.

Limited numbers of the eMagazine are printed for ease of accessibility for employee's that don't have daily access to the network and a copy is passed out to new employees at New Employee Orientation to introduce them to the eMagazine.

The meeting was called to order by Dr. Haynes. The Committee approved the minutes from the November 19, 2014, meeting.

Revenue collections are trending below projections by $1.8 million
Expenditures are trending under budget by $12.7 million
The year-to-date net variance for the agency is a positive $10.9 million or 2% under budget.

Mr. McCann presented Budget Revision 4 that had been processed since the last Finance Committee meeting. The revision was an overall decrease in FY15 budget of $4 million. This decrease was primarily due to the correction of a grant initially budgeted for the entire three-year period of the grant instead of a one-year period for FY15.

Mr. McCann presented the FY14 State Audit Report for review. There were no significant issues arising from the audit report that was discussed, or were the subject of correspondence with management. PRESENTATION

Carrie Slatton-Hodges, Deputy Commissioner of Treatment and Recovery Services stated that the first presentation was on a Criminal Justice Diversion Program which works to screen individuals to help provide resources or link them to resources to keep them from falling further into the criminal justice system.

Deputy Commissioner Slatton-Hodges stated that approximately nine years ago, before she and Commissioner White were in their current roles, they had worked on this issue. She stated that they worked on the development of a list of areas of diversion based upon the sequential intercept models. She stated that one of these initiatives developed into the Smart on Crime project. She stated that about two years ago, they received funds from the Legislature to move forward on a portion of this project related to jail screenings, and Nisha Wilson, Director of Specialty Courts, was tasked to come up with a plan and to implement that plan throughout the state.

Ms. Wilson gave a brief presentation on the Department's jail screening program and what is being done to lower the number of those incarcerated with mental health and/or substance abuse issues who are incarcerated and to get those individuals into treatment.

Mr. Carson asked why the numbers were so different between Tulsa and Shawnee. Ms. Wilson stated that they were looking at two different measures on the slides that were shown. In Tulsa County, they were able to look at their jail data; however, they don't have the same access in some of the smaller areas. The data that was reviewed in Pontatoc County was the time that it took individuals to get into the drug court program.

Mr. Carson asked if the general public has accepted the program. Ms. Wilson stated that due to the positive outcomes, it has been well received in the communities.

Commissioner White stated that the Department requested $5 million to do screenings at jails across the state. She stated that two years ago the Department received $1 million to start the screening program and, to date, Ms. Wilson has the program up and running in 18 counties, including Oklahoma and Tulsa County. Commissioner White stated that due to the success of this program in those 18 counties, she is hopeful the Legislature will grant additional funding to expand this program statewide.

Mr. Carson asked approximately how many individuals were in the drug court program on any given day. Commissioner White stated that it was about 4,000 individuals. She also explained that there are approximately 450 individuals in the mental health courts every day. She is hoping to expand the mental health courts program statewide, as they are currently in only 16 counties; whereas, the drug courts are in 74 counties.

Dr. Haynes asked about the effectiveness of mental health courts. Commissioner White stated that those individual's unemployment rate and arrest rate goes down about 80 percent. Ms. Wilson stated that the number of days for inpatient residential treatment also goes down about 60 percent.

Dr. McCaffree asked how someone could help get their state representatives on board with these programs. Commissioner White stated that the Department has printed information they can give to individuals that show that drug and mental health courts are working, along with information on the success of jail screenings.

PRESENTATION

Commissioner White introduced Codie Howell who gave a brief presentation on his own experiences with drug court. He talked about the events that led up to his arrest, how the system worked for him, and because of drug courts he was able to obtain his dream. He thanked the Board and all those involved with the program. He stated that without them he would not have made it.
