OKLAHOMA

With the continuing migration of people to urban areas, many of us have little opportunity to experience wildlife in their natural habitat. Fortunately, in Oklahoma one does not have to venture far to reach a secluded area where native animals make their home.

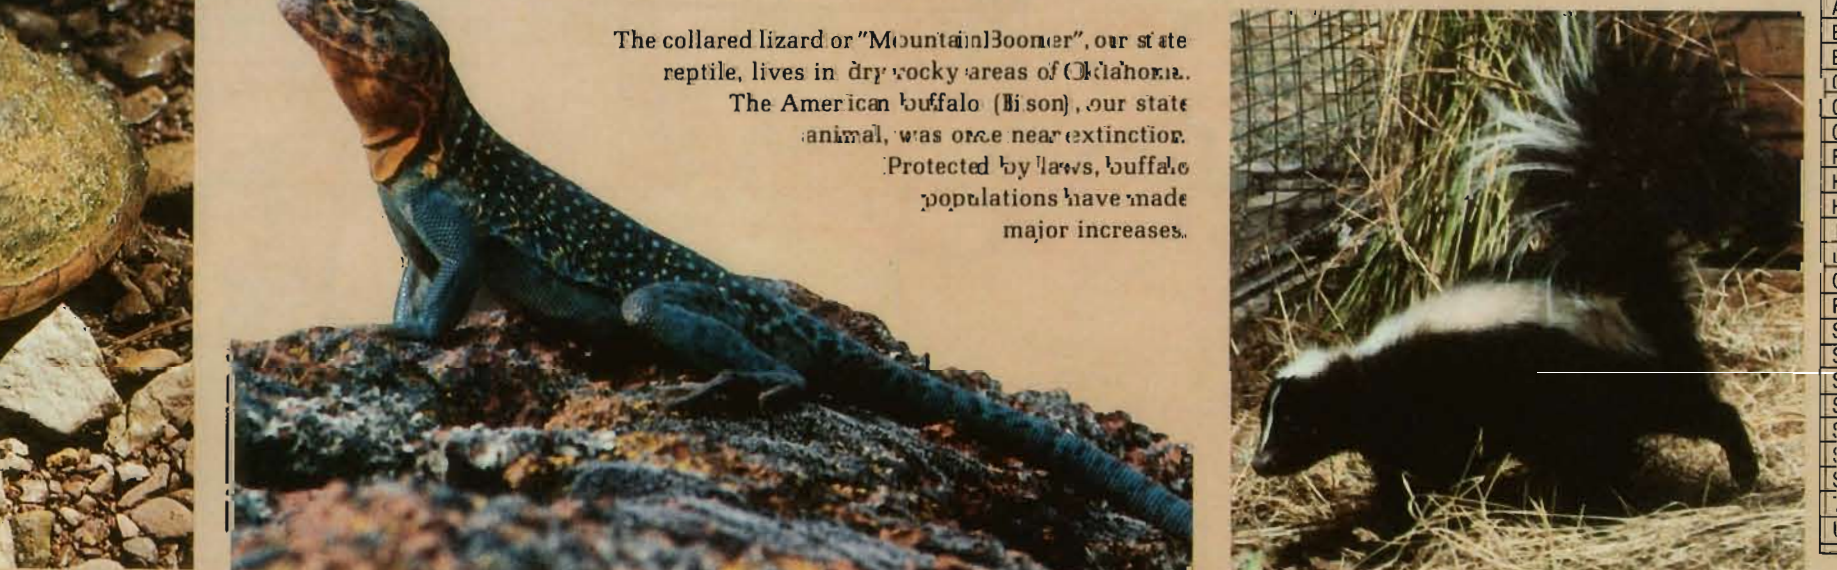

Preservation of these undisturbed spaces has long been a priority in our state and is especially evident in the many wildlife management areas and refuges. A wide range of wild species roam the prairies, highlands, streams and forested regions of these public and private lands.

While traveling about the state, keep an eye out for the original residents, Oklahoma wildlife, and enjoy the timeless adventure of our natural environment.
